The Big Shift: Responding to Increasing Self-Representation in Family Law

Self-represented litigants (SRLs) have been appearing before the courts and other parts of the justice system in growing numbers, resulting in increased challenges for the courts, lawyers, and other practitioners in the family justice system. Some estimates put the number of cases with an SRL as high as 70%.

“The Big Shift: Responding to Increasing Self-Representation in Family Law” will be led by Madam Justice Goebel, Kim Newsham and Christine Hansen-Chad. Their goal is to offer practical advice, tips, and observations for dealing with SRLs, from a court, private practice and front-line perspective.

This session has been conveniently scheduled from noon to 2pm to ensure minimum disruption to your daily practice; lunch will be provided and can be collected starting at noon and eaten during the presentation which will start promptly at 12:30pm.
